EXCHANGE OF KNOWLEDGE BETWEEN LITERATE CULTURES

and Regional Studies (ToRS),

Conference Overview: This conference explores the different aspects of how knowledge is exchanged between literate cultures. We recognise that in exchanges between literate cultures, knowledge is often construed, constructed, and contextualised to adapt to a recipient's culture. This transformation is subject to the historical, philosophical, sociopolitical, and scientific traditions prevalent among the recipient people. As these traditions change with the passage of time and the movement of people, so too does the locus and language of literacy in those cultures.
